Terrain

Terrain is mainly covered in sparse pine fores, which makes possible to make shortcuts in prepared track network. In some parts vegetation is denser and occur windblown trees. Maximum height difference on one slope is 25 meters. Terrain is gently undulating and physically not very demanding. Due to poor snow conditions ski tracks are not in perfect condition and at many places you can feel ground under your skis. It requires good balance and skihandling skills to go fast on such tracks. One part of terrain is pretty rough and it needs extreme carefulness not to damage your equipment.
